Policy to be reviewed: September 2026

Intent:

The purpose of the Compass School's reading curriculum is to provide pupils with the knowledge, skills and strategies necessary to become confident, competent and lifelong readers who also develop a richer understanding of language and culture.

Through the reading curriculum, pupils develop their ability to decode, comprehend and critically analyse a range of texts including fiction, nonfiction and poetry.

Pupils will also be able to segment and blend words, building up their fluency.

The curriculum (including our enrichment curriculum and cross curricular links) also aims to foster a love of reading and to encourage pupils to engage with reading for pleasure both in and out of school.

By equipping pupils with strong reading skills and a passion for reading, the curriculum helps to prepare them for success in their academic, personal and future professional lives.

Additionally, the reading curriculum plays a crucial role in promoting social mobility and equity as it provides all pupils, regardless of their background, with equal access to knowledge and opportunities that come along with being a proficient reader.

At Compass School we intend to

- Promote and encourage a lifelong enjoyment and love of reading by providing pupils with a wide range of texts, including literary classics, non-fiction and modern literature to stimulate their desire to read

- Provide opportunities for every child to become a reader
- Provide regular opportunities for pupils to read independently, out loud and to be read to
- Provide access to texts and online reading resources for use at home, and support parents/carers to engage positively and support their child's reading experience
- Develop a broad range of reading skills that can be applied to a wide range of reading text types and genres across the whole curriculum and beyond into their future lives

How do we know what level the children are at?

In primary, pupils complete a phonics screening to determine what level they are currently at and phonics books will be chosen from the Read Write Inc (RWInc) Fresh Start programme that are appropriate for their level.

When pupils use Reading Plus, they complete a baseline assessment which identifies the age they are reading at. From there pupils can select texts from a huge range of both fiction and non-fiction books. The texts are adjusted as pupils reading improves and they gain confidence.

In addition, pupils are supported to choose a book they would like to read to an adult (1:1) from the Oxford Reading Tree book scheme. Staff will support pupils with intonation and expression, fluency and pronunciation and are able to model reading skills to pupils. Teachers also track pupils' fluency in reading on a half termly basis by completing an individual fluency tracker.

At secondary, pupils also use Reading Plus in the same way as primary pupils. In addition, where appropriate and according to pupil's ability, we will also support them by using the RWInc Fresh Start programme and we also use the King Street programme which introduces phonics skills in a way that older pupils find accessible. In secondary, teachers also track pupils' fluency in reading on a half termly basis by completing an individual fluency tracker.

How do we know what progress they are making?

The Reading Plus portal is able to track pupils progress across the school in terms of the number of words read, their fluency and comprehension. It will adjust the difficulty of the texts in accordance with pupil's ability as they improve. In addition, in primary, pupils are also assessed on a weekly basis through a one-to-one reading session with either a teaching assistant or a teacher. They will be asked questions about what they have read in order to determine the levels of comprehension. In secondary, we have the tracking of King Street exercises and the use of the multi-dynamic fluency tracker, as well as targeted reading logs and the assessment of Toe-by-Toe.

How do we support our children to develop a love of reading?

- Our motto is every teacher is a teacher of reading and every opportunity should be taken to allow pupils the chance to read in any lesson (not just in reading lessons)
- All children will have access to a range of texts, both fiction and non-fiction, on the reading Plus portal
- In lessons pupils will have access to a range of reading resources. This may include traditional fairy tales / rhymes, classic children's stories, recipes, maps as well as being able to undertake research etc. Pupils have access to rich texts; texts that are in-depth and complex and encompass intricate narratives, multifaced characters and thought-provoking themes. This enables them to engage with complex ideas, diverse perspectives and deep emotions which can lead to a more immersive and fulfilling reading experience
- Children are also encouraged to read at home via the Reading Plus portal and have the opportunity to take books home with them should they wish to. Additional support will be available for parents who may find it difficult to support their child with reading

Furthermore, pupils will be given regular opportunities to use and apply their reading skills across all areas of the curriculum, and throughout their time at Compass, helping them to know more, remember more and understand more.

Impact

Regardless of background, ability or additional needs, by the time our pupils leave Compass School, we aim for them to:

- Be enthusiastic and motivated readers who are more confident in reading a variety of genres and text types
- Have the skills needed to decode words in order to be able to read more fluently with a secure understanding of what they have read
- Improve skills in critical thinking, analysis and problem-solving through their reading of rich texts
- Be inspired by literature and more likely to read for pleasure
- An understanding of, and exposure to, literary heritage that allows our pupils to connect with the cultural and historical contexts of different eras and regions, fostering a deeper understanding of human history and society
- Develop a lifelong passion for reading
- The combination of rich texts, varied vocabulary and literary heritage enables our pupils to enjoy a deeper and more rewarding reading experience, as well as personal and intellectual growth
